PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 8.

There is a Letter in Town from ſome Palatines, who embarked at Rotterdam in June laſt, in a Ship bound for this Place, but are arrived at Marthas-Vineyard, an Iſland on the Coaſt of New-England; containing an Account, that the Ship being four and twenty Weeks in her Paſſage, their Proviſion fell ſhort; and in the laſt eight Weeks they had no Bread, but a pint of Grouts was all the Allowance for five Perſons per Day: They eat all the Rats and Mice they could catch, and the price of a Rat was 18*d.* and of a Mouſe 6*d.* and Water 6*d.* a quart: That ſeven Perſons died of Hunger and Thirſt in one Night; and of one hundred and fifty Paſſengers which came on board at Rotterdam, above a hundred were miſerably ſtarved to Death; When at length it pleaſed God that a Sloop met them, and conducted the Ship into Homes's-Hole, a Harbour of the above-ſaid Iſland. In the firſt three Days after their Arrival, fifteen more died, who had been reduced ſo low by Famine, that 'twas impoſſible to recover them. They write further, that they think if they had continued at Sea three Days longer, they ſhould all have died, no one being able to hand another a drop of Water; but that the good People of the Iſland are very charitable and kind to them, and do every thing in their power to refreſh them; ſo that many who were famiſhed and near Death, begin to revive, but none were yet ſtrong enough to travel.

THE Pennſylvania GAZETTE.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Foreign and Domeſtick.

From Tueſday, February 8. to Tueſday, February 15. 1731-2.

Being deſired the Week before laſt, to render into good Engliſh an imperfect Tranſlation of the Letter from ſome Palatines to the Rev. Mr. Weys, I took the Pains to alter the Form of it entirely, and put it in the moſt advantageous Dreſs I could, with a View of inſerting it afterwards in my Gazette: But before the Time of Publiſhing, the Gentleman from whom I had the Letter, let me know, that there being ſome Reflections therein upon the Captain, which perhaps were too much aggravated, and he not here to anſwer any thing in his own vindication, it might be better not to print it till we ſhould be further informed, and allowed me only to make a ſhort Abſtract, giving an Account what Diſtreſs the poor People had been in, without mentioning the Captain at all. This I did; but was ſurpriz'd upon ſight of Mr. Bradford's next Paper, to find my Verſion inſerted there at length, Word for Word, (excepting a few typographical Errors and his affixing a Date to it whereas there was none in the Original.) It ſeems ſome Perſon, to whom a Copy had been lent, carried it to him. I was diſpleas'd that I had taken ſo much pains for my Competitor, and my Subſcribers are diſpleaſed that I did not in my Paper give as full an Account as he gave: I have therefore now made a new Verſion of the Letter, containing ſome Particulars omitted in the former, and more agreeable to the rude Simplicity of Language and Incoherence of Narrative in the Original. From which the Reader may perhaps be able to make a better Judgment of the Affair than before.

Dear Mr. Weys,

WE your poor and abandon'd Sheep, who have no Relief or Aſſiſtance to expect of any Body, turn our ſelves to you as our faithful Paſtor, and beſeech you to take part of our deplorable Condition, and to repreſent it to the Spiritual and Temporal Powers in Philadelphia: For this wicked Murderer of Souls, Capt. Labb, has thought to ſtarve us all, (not have taken enough Proviſion in Rotterdam according to our Agreement) and to make himſelf Maſter of all our Goods; for we have ſeen in the laſt eight Weeks no Bread at all, and in four of theſe eight Weeks, a pint of Grouts was the Allowance of Five Perſons one Day, and a Quart of Water a Perſon one Day. Our Time from Rotterdam to the Land here at Homes Hole Marthas Vineyard 16 hours from Rhode-iſland, has been four and twenty Weeks, and of 150 Perſons, more than 100 are died and periſhed. And the Ship went on only in the Day-time, and Nights commonly the Helm was tied, and twice we awaked them, and asking them why they did not ſail, and the Wind was ſo good; then they looſed the Sails, and went away. And in theſe laſt eight Weeks, the Hunger was ſo great, that we have eat Rats and Mice, ſo that one Rat coſt eight pence, and two Shillings; and a Mouſe three pence and four pence, and a Quart of Water four pence, that ſome of us let others have for their Childrens-ſake. When it was a little ſtormy Weather, the whole Voyage from Rotterdam, they did not give us in two and three Days no Victuals, and theſe laſt eight Weeks no Water too; ſo that in one Night ſeven Perſons miſerably are ſtarved to Death and thrown into the Sea; one muſt throw the poor People naked into the Sea, and let them ſwim, and one could not have a little Sand to ſink the Body to the Ground; one dare not ask any thing from the Sailors, for they ſcot us back with Scolding and Railing, and we were kicked, beat and uſed as if we were Slaves and maleficent Perſons. In this Time, we thought to refreſh our ſelves with our Rheniſh Wine, which was about ſix Awms that we had bought at Worms for our Money got with hard Labour; we would diſtribute it amongſt the People, that they might not all be ſtarved; and we went together to the Captain, and deſired that he would give it us out; at laſt he gave us the Key to the Hold in a great Paſſion, but ſent no body with to ſhow where they had put the Wine: When we had ſearched a great while, we found ſome of our Casks, the Bungs drawn out with a Skrew, and the Wine all drunk up. And when we asked the Sailors what they had done with our Wine, we received Scolding and Railing for all Anſwer. Miſery was ſo great: And we deſired the Captain oftentimes to put us on Land, that we might buy us ſome more Proviſion; then he has put us off from day to day eight Weeks long. Till at laſt it pleaſed Almighty God to ſend us a Sloop, which brought us to Homes Hole, Marthas Vineyard, where he came to Anchor in the middle of the Sea: He kept us there in the Ship ſtill five or ſix Days, and we muſt pay dear for every thing, ſo that one Loaf of Indian Corn Bread coſt 8 Shillings; and he gave out of us, that we were Turks and no Chriſtians: In that time ſtarved yet fifteen Perſons more, and if we had been kept there three or four Days longer, we ſhould all have been ſtarved, for not one was able to reach to the other a Drop of Water. And then we were put in a great Hurry in the Sloop, and ſet on ſhore, without our Beds, or any thing of our Moveables; ſo that we did not know what he intended to do with us, nor if we ſhould ever ſee any thing again of our Moveables; which makes us ſuffer much, for there are but few Houſes, ſo that we can have no Accommodation, becauſe of the narrowneſs of the Place. The good People of this Iſland did whatever they could to refreſh us with Bread, Meat and other Victuals. And the Sailors carried away moſt all our Moveables, and all our Cheſts broke open and ſpoliated. They have perſuaded us, for dead and living, to pay the whole Freight, as if they had landed us at Philadelphia; and which we have ſign'd to, not underſtanding what it was; but we are not able to accompliſh; for in order to pay for the dead, we ſhould have taken the Goods of the Dead; but in diſcharging the Veſſel we found, that moſt of their Cheſts as well as ours were broke open and plundered. The Captain however has obtained that we ſhould pay him in 3 Weeks time, therefore we deſire you inſtantly to have Compaſſion with us, and to aſſiſt us as much as in your Power, and to repreſent our pitiful State to the Governour; for if no Reſiſtance be made to this wicked Captain, he'll make us all Beggars. What ſhall be our Duty for your pains, we ſhall thankfully repay. God Almighty have Mercy upon us, and help us out of this Diſtreſs. We would have ſent two or three Men with this Letter, but not one is yet able to ſtir; for we are all very weak and feeble; but aſſoon as there ſhall be two or three able to travel, they ſhall follow: But if the cold Weather ſhould fall in, and hinder them, we deſire you to go on in our Name, and recommending you to the Protection of the Almighty we are
